torial entitled "Before and After," in the Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal says:"When, in the early days of 1887 the Courier-Journal undertook to sound the alarm, and to warn the administration of the dangers which its want of sympathy with the democratic party was invoking, we were filled by the assurance that the re-nomination of the President was inevitable, and inspired by the truest desire for his re-election. In the light of the returns from the State of New York, all that was said by us at that time reads to-day like a prophecy."Mr. Cleveland goes down among his people because of the friends he chilled into indifference or converted into enemies, partly through over-confidence in the star of his destiny, and partly through the lack of those amenities which go so far to make men strong or weak on occasions of emergency. When the trial came there was literally no one among the professional politicians to make the President's fight his fight; no one among the great capitalists to advance considerable sums of money; no one among the leaders inspired by the sublime energy of personal devotion, and no enthusiasm among the masses, other than that brought out by the cold issue of tariff reform or started spasmodically by the figure of the Old Roman flashing fitfully through the tumult and confusion of the fray. To all approaches for help, which the President thought he had no right to give, his one answer was that this was not the Administration's, but the people's battle.
When he was asked directly from the national democratic headquarters whether he was for or against us, he smiled pleasantly, and considered that which was only half a just as all a tribute to his integrity.
As indeed it was, though at the expense of his wisdom. It is true to say of him that he did not raise his hand to help himself, from the beginning to the end of the campaign; that he did not encourage anybody else to help him, and that in many cases he did not permit his official subordinates to help him.
This was magnificent, but it was not politics. Undoubtedly it, and all that had preceded it, made the difference in the vote of the State of New York. It cost us and him the loss of it.Is the Route Practicable?—Notwithstanding the emphatic warnings of all experienced Arctic navigators, and the difficulties encountered on the Alert expeditions, the projected route from England through Hudson Strait to Fort Churchill continues to be discussed in England and Canada; and quite recently the establishment of a line of steamers on this route was advocated by no less an authority than Commodore A. H. Markham, in a lecture delivered before the Royal Geographical society. As he failed, however, to dis-prove any of the objections raised against the practicability of this route, which are chiefly founded on the always imminent danger of Fox channel ice, his remarks fail to convince us. There is no doubt that powerful but small steamers can accomplish the journey annually with comparative safety, but this is far from being sufficient to make the Hudson Strait a practicable trade route. The premium on this route would have to be enormously high on account of the great number of dangers to navigation, and at all seasons the steamers would be liable to long delays. Sir Charles Tupper, who was present at this discussion, did not take as favorable a view as Markham, while Dr. Rae condemned the plan as wholly untenable. It seems somewhat surprising to see it again revived after its impracticability appeared to have been proved by the results of the Canadian Hudson Bay expeditions.—*Science.A DUEL BY MOONLIGHT.—News of a determined duel by moonlight comes from Biarritz. It was fought by two young Spaniards of high family, who quarreled on a very trivial pretext at a soiree given by the Baron de Bee. The combatants chose pistols, and as the moon did not sufficiently illuminate the scene candles and torches were placed in a sequestered part of the baron's horticultural premises. Positions were taken at twenty paces, and hardly had the word of command been given when one of the combatants fell shrieking to the ground. He had been shot through the right shoulder, the blade of which was fractured. The bullet was extracted by a surgeon after a little difficulty, and the wounded bidaigo was taken home, where he now lies, and is in a fair way to recovery. He is the son of a Spanish general. The seconds of the defeated combatant were Prince Oldenburg, a relative of the czar, and Don Alfonso de Aladama, a young Carlist officer, while the victor was attended on the ground by Comte de Lesser and the Duke of Tamames, a grandee of Spain of the first class, husband of one of the daughters of the Duke of Alba, and a nephew by marriage of the Empress Eugenie. The pretext of the quarrel is described as futile, but it is possible that a dark-eyed senorita was at the bottom of it all.—*Paris Dispatch.ADVICE TO MOTHERS.Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP, for children teething, is the prescription of one of the best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and has been used for forty years with never-failing success by millions of mothers for their children. During the process of teething the child is in a state of great suffering, griping in the bowels and wind-colic. By giving health to the child it rests the mother. Price 25 cents a bottle.SEITZER SPRING.—A company has purchased the seitzer spring at Saratoga, and has begun experiments for the purpose of liberating and storing, in liquid form, the carbonic acid gas with which it abounds. Prof. Oscar Brunlo, a German expert, has charge of the work, and has sounded the spring to a depth of 3,300 feet, without touching bottom or encountering any obstacle. This strengthens the belief in the existence of a great subterranean sea which many scientific men think underlies Saratoga; and the company who are sounding the seitzer spring hope to solve the question one way or another before long.Syrup of FigsIs Nature's own true laxative. It is the most easily taken, and the most effective remedy known to cleanse the system when Bilious or Costive; to dispel Headaches,
